

Brian Resler is a Vice President in Aon's Washington, DC office, where he directs engagements involving cybercrime and incident response, digital forensics, and investigations into theft of intellectual property and employee misconduct. Prior to joining Aon in 2020, Mr. Resler was a federal and state prosecutor for almost 24 years, and most recently served as the Assistant Deputy Chief for Litigation at the Computer Crimes and Intellectual Property Section ("CCIPS") in the Criminal Division of the U.S. Department of Justice. While at CCIPS, Mr. Resler supervised the Section's nationwide caseload, and specialized in trade secret, counterfeiting, and cybersecurity investigations, prosecutions, and policy, and was a regular speaker at numerous domestic and foreign government and industry conferences.

